Re: Yosemite Slough Superfund Site, San Francisco, California

Dear Thanne:

As you know from my email to you dated November 18, 2011, on December 14, 2009, I sent a letter to your predecessor Mike Massey updating EPA regarding additional parties that, pursuant to separate agreements relating to the 1212 Thomas Avenue Site that were entered into by certain members of the Yosemite Creek PRP Group (the "Group"), certain members of the Group would be providing a defense to EPA's claims with respect to the Yosemite Creek Site (the "Site"), subject to certain reservations of rights.

I write now to update you regarding an additional entity for which these members of the Group have agreed to provide a defense to EPA's claims concerning the Site, subject to certain reservations of rights. The entity is Reynolds Metals Company, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Alcoa, Incorporated ("Reynolds Metals"). Therefore, in addition to the entities listed in my December 14, 2009 letter, please also direct any future correspondence regarding EPA's claims with respect to the Site that is intended for Reynolds Metals to me at the address above.

For your convenience, below is an updated list of entities that certain members of the Group have agreed to provide a defense to EPA's claims with respect to the Site:

2. Honeywell International Inc. (for Baron Blakeslee, Inc. (Allied Signal))
